

Environmental Policy- Sustainability

Gillett Morrissey

As a modern thinking and reasonably young company we consider the environment and sustainability of extremely high importance. At all times, whether on sites or in our offices we instigate and encourage recycling and the use of sustainable materials and products.

Our company policy is wherever possible to use email as our method of our communication as opposed to printing.

On many occasions our clients projects and design teams will include professional consultants who produce sustainability reports, the West Village project in Bluewater Shopping Centre is a prime example of same. Our company assisted the design team with researching and sourcing some of the sustainable products that have been incorporated within the West Village prototype washroom project, for example the specialist water saving devices and sensor equipment.

On projects over £300k we will also be directly involved in handling and monitoring the Site Waste Management Plans and material salvage/ reuse will be very important to us where possible.

Our management team, workforce and sub-contractors are constantly researching and learning about new sustainable services and products that can be used and specified for construction and within our specialist washroom projects not only for installation but ongoing maintenance.
